PRESS RELEASE
20th January 2010

Wemyss Malts launches their Single Cask range in America

Following the success of its five year old blended malt range Wemyss Malts is pleased to announce the release of a connoisseur range of Single Cask whiskies.

Wemyss Malts is the brainchild of the Wemyss (pronounced 'weems') family from Fife, Scotland. Based on the premise that the terminology used in the whisky industry can be confusing, the Wemyss family use the aromas and tastes of the individual whiskies to uniquely identify each bottling. This allows consumer to easily understand what style of whisky is being purchased.

The family's connection with the whisky industry dates back to the turn of the 19th century when Haig's first distillery was built on Wemyss land. Even today barley from their estate in Fife is grown for many of Scotland's leading distilleries

Each cask is in celebration of the unique and contrasting appeals of the different whisky regions (Islay, Highland and Speyside). Each cask is bottled at 46% ABV, no caramel is added and none are chill filtered. The release consists of varying tastes and aromas, ranging from the 'The Hive', a 15 years old Single Highland Malt through to a 12 years old Single Islay Malt called 'Smoke Bluff'.

William Wemyss, Managing Director of Wemyss Malts, commented 'After the success of the five year old range customers were asking us 'where next' and, having identified some exceptional casks, we felt that a Single Cask range would offer greater complexity for those connoisseurs who had already enjoyed our blended malts.'
